

CONTINENTS

North America

Tell the Tale

Chapter Four of this book discusses the American holiday of Independence Day, or the Fourth of July. Write 200 words describing what Independence Day is like in your family or community. What are your favorite things about this holiday? How would you explain the Fourth of July's meaning to someone who does not celebrate this holiday? Be sure to set the scene, offer a sequence of events, and write a conclusion.

CONTINENTS

North America

Surprise Me

Learning about the many climates and landforms found in North America can be interesting and surprising. Think about what you learned from this book. Can you name two or three facts in this book that surprised you? Write a short paragraph about each. Describe what you found surprising and why.

CONTINENTS

North America

Dig Deeper

After reading this book, what questions do you still have about the indigenous peoples of North America? Write down one or two questions that can guide you in doing research. With an adult's help, find a few reliable new sources about North America's native peoples that can help answer your questions. Write a few sentences about how you did your research and what you learned from it.

CONTINENTS

North America

Another View

There are many different sources about North America. Each source is a little bit different. Ask a librarian or another adult to help you find a reliable source on North America. Then write a short essay comparing and contrasting the new source's point of view to the ideas in this book. How are the sources similar? How are the sources different? Why do you think they are similar or different?